

TRIBUNE ALMANAC FOR 1860.

ECLIPSES FOR THE YEAR 1860.

There will be four Eclipses this year, as follows:

I. An annular Eclipse of the Sun, January 22, invisible in America. Visible at and about the South Pole.

II. A partial Eclipse of the Moon, February 6, in the evening. Visible. Size 9.744 digits on the northern limb. See the annexed table for the times.

III. A total Eclipse of the Sun, July 13th, in the morning. In the United States this will only be a partial eclipse, except at Astoria and the north-western part of Washington Territory, where it will be total. The line of central and total eclipse begins in the Pacific Ocean, south-west of the mouth of Columbia river, in lat. 45° 40' N., and long. 125° 55' W. of Greenwich; from thence it runs easterly and northerly through British America and Hudson's bay, then bends southerly, crosses the Atlantic, runs through Spain and the Mediterranean sea, then into Africa, and ends by the side of the Red sea, in lat. 15° 43' 2" N., and long. 39° 47' E. of Greenwich. Its size in the Northern States will be from 6 to 7 digits, and in the South from 3 to 5 digits.

The partial Eclipse begins on the Earth in the northern and unsettled part of Texas, lat. 34° 40' 4" N., long. 25° 22' 8" W. of Washington, at the instant of sunrise. See the annexed table of this Solar Eclipse.

NOTE.—The Sun's declination is given in the monthly tables, for the instant his centre is on the meridian of Washington.

Leap-Year.

Every year the number of which is divisible by 4 without a remainder, is a leap-year, except the last year of the century, which is a leap-year only when divisible by 400 without a remainder. Thus the year 1900 will not be leap-year.

Morning and Evening Stars.

Venus will be Evening Star until July 18th, then Morning Star the rest of the year. Mars will be Morning Star until July 17th, then Evening Star the rest of the year. Jupiter will be Morning Star until January 10th, then Evening Star until July 29th, then Morning Star the rest of the year. Saturn will be Morning Star until February 11th, then Evening Star until August 22d, then Morning Star the rest of the year.

Ocaltations.

Venus will be eclipsed by the Moon on the 24th of April, visible generally throughout the country. The planet will disappear behind the Moon at 8h. 33m. in the evening, and reappear at 9h. 8m. Washington mean time.

Jupiter will also be eclipsed by the Moon north of lat. 43° on the 26th of April, at about an hour before the Moon sets.

True Time.

Two kinds of time are used in Almanacs; clock or mean-time in some, and apparent or sun-time in others. Clock-time is always right, while Sun-time varies every day. People generally suppose it is twelve o'clock when the sun is due south, or at a properly made noon-mark. But this is a mistake. The sun is seldom on the meridian at twelve o'clock; indeed this is the case only on four days of the year: namely, April 15, June 15, Sept. 1, and Dec. 24. In this Almanac, as in most other Almanacs, the time used is clock-time. The time when the sun is on the meridian or at the noon-mark, is also given to the nearest second, for the 1st, 9th, 17th, and 25th days of each month, at the right hand of the top of each calendar page. This affords a ready means of obtaining correct time and for setting a clock by using a noon-mark, adding or subtracting as the sun is slow or fast.

Old-fashioned Almanacs, which use apparent time, give the rising and setting of the sun's centre and make no allowance for the effect of refraction of the sun's rays by the atmosphere. The more modern and improved Almanacs, which use clock-time, give the rising and setting of the sun's upper limb, and duly allow for refraction. The practice of setting time-pieces by the rising or setting of the sun or moon is not strictly correct, as the unevenness of the earth's surface and intervening objects, such as hills and forests, near the points of rising and setting, occasion a deviation in every place, from the time expressed in the Almanac, which time is adapted to a smooth, level horizon. The only means of keeping correct time is by the use of a noon-mark, or a meridian line.

To Ascertain the Length of the Day and Night,

At any time of the year, add 12 hours to the time of the sun's setting, and from the sum subtract the time of rising, for the length of the day. Subtract the time of setting from 12 hours, and to the remainder add the time of rising next morning, for the length of the night. These rules are equally true for apparent time.

Tides.

La Place pronounces the formula for deducing the tides the most difficult problem of celestial mechanics. It sometimes happens that the tide comes in several hours later or earlier than the most learned calculation would determine; and this in consequence of the strength and direction of the wind, which the calculator cannot reckon upon.

The Calendar pages exhibit the time of high-water at Boston, New York and Charleston. To find the time of high-water at any of the following places, add to or subtract from the time of high water, morning or evening, at New York, the quantity of time affixed to such place in this table. In using the quantities in this table, observe that more than 12 hours and less than 24, from midnight or the beginning of morning, is afternoon of the same day; and that more than 12 hours and less than 24, from noon, is morning of the next day.

THE WIDOW MALONEY'S PIG.—Mike Murphy was taken to task by his spiritual guide for having stolen the widow Maloney's pig. The evidence against Mike was so direct and positive that it was worse than useless for him to deny that he had unlawfully appropriated the youthful porker, and he listened with downcast eyes and much meekness to a well-deserved lecture from the priest, upon the wickedness of the theft he had committed, till the reverend gentleman asked him what he would be able to say in the great judgment day, when he should be confronted by Mrs. Maloney and the stolen pig? when he brightened up and said, "And you say that the pig will be there, yer riverence?" "Yes, Mrs. Maloney and the pig, living witnesses to your wrong doing. What, I repeat, can you say in such a presence?" "Yer riverence, I'll say, 'Widdie Maloney, there's yer pig!'"

As the late Rufus Choate was attending the Italian opera one evening, with a lady, he leaned toward her with the extremest gravity, and said, "Interpret the libretto for me, my dear, lest I dilate with the wrong emotion."

GEN. PERKINS and Tom Marshall were once canvassing the State of Kentucky in a hotly contested election. Perkins was a roaring democrat and demagogue. Among other means for catching the flats, he was in the habit of boasting that his father was a cooper by trade, in an obscure part of the State. "He (Perkins) was one of the people. He didn't belong to the kid-gloved aristocracy." His great failing was his fondness for old Monongahela whisky, and the more he drank, the more of a democrat he became, and the prouder of being the son of a cooper. Of this fact he had been making the most, when Marshall, in replying to his speech, while looking at him with great contempt, said: "Fellow-citizens, his father may have been a very good cooper—I don't deny that—but I do say, gentlemen, that he put a mighty poor head into that whisky-barrel."

"Good evening, Mary," said a gentleman to a young lady whom he had offended.

"Miss Mary, if you please," said the damsel, bridling up at his familiarity.

"We can Miss you, Mary, only when you are absent," was a reply which made Mary smile in spite of herself.

A good story is told of an officer in the American army, during the war of 1812-14, who was, and is still, more accustomed to the use of the sword than the pen. While stationed on the lake frontier, two of his soldiers, brothers, by the name of Kennedy, and usually called Kanady, deserted. The officer of whom we are speaking, wrote an order, and issued it to a subaltern, to take a file of men, and proceed to a place named, and take the two Canadas. The order was peremptory, and not to be trifled with. The officer looked at his instructions and prepared to obey them, but he remarked that he did not believe he could take more than one of the provinces without a re-enforcement.

QUID PRO QRO.—Mr. Foote had said that he would write a little book in which Mr. Benton should figure very largely. Mr. B. heard of this, and replied, in his characteristic way, to the informant:

"Tell Foote that I will write a very large book, in which he shall not figure at all."

The "Thirty Years" will show how faithfully this promise was kept."

CAUSE AND EFFECT.—In the hearing of an Irish case for assault and battery, a counsel, while cross-examining one of the witnesses, asked him what they had the first place they stopped at? "Four glasses of ale," was the reply. "Next?" "Two glasses of whisky." "Next?" "One glass of brandy." "Next?" "A fight."

When dressed for the evening, the girls, now-a-days,

Scarce an atom of dress on them leave;
None blame them—for what is an evening dress,
But a dress that is suited for Eve?

A QUARTER OF TWELVE.—"Ben, why were you out so late last night?"

"It wasn't so very late—only a quarter of 12!"

"How dare you sit there and tell me that? I was awake when you came, and looked at my watch. It was three o'clock."

"Well, isn't three a quarter of twelve?"

A YOUNG man in a western town had patronized the fine arts so far as to buy a picture of the temptation of Adam and Eve. Some one asked him if it was a chaste picture. "Yes," he said, "chased by a snake."

Smith, badly jilted, findeth Consolation in Philosophy.

"Yes! Jones has wed a handsome wife,
I envy him at present;
But he must keep her all his life,
And that may be unpleasant,
For should these turtles disagree,
Just Heaven! how Jones will envy me!"

"A hee has stung your lip, ah, wife!
You must have kissed your cousin John,
And left the tempting honey on.

I'll be revenged! I'll take his life!
Boy! bring my double gun, I'll shoot him!
No! bring my double soles! I'll boot him!"

Smith, himself overtaken, at last, by Matrimony, findeth Philosophy of no avail.

Smith's lovely bride has rushed down stairs
To learn what meant that crash.
Her husband in the parlor swears,
Amid a frightful smash
Of cornices and ceiling work;
And there the suicidal Turk
Sits on the floor hestrewn with wreck,
A hempen tie around his neck!

"Good gracious! Mr. Smith! what's this!
I'm going to faint! Get up, you heast,
And catch me! Well, this married bliss
Is three-fourths humbug at the least!"

*Smith answers with a hollow voice,
(But his expressions are not choice):*

"The devil take these modern houses,
Modern improvements, modern spouses!
Time was when men might end their cares,
Without incurring for repairs
A bill of lath-and-plaster work.
But now we cannot even shirk

That petty torment—Woman's Tongue!
I'd just made fast this half-inch rope,
And entertained a pleasing hope
That I was comfortably hung,
When down came all that flamagee.
Well, now, perhaps, we may agree
To live in peace, without contention.
I'll break your neck, if this you mention!"

A WITTY fellow slipped down on an icy pavement. While sitting, he muttered, "I have no desire to see the town burned down, but I sincerely wish the streets were laid in ashes."

A PIORS DEACON.—A certain deacon, called Highley, used to trade horses at the Berkshire cattle market. Stirred up by the preaching of his minister, he one Sunday, after meeting, thus communicated with one Brown:

"You don't s'pose, brother Brown," he argued, "You don't s'pose them little stories—sort o' lies, like—that you and I tell in the way o' trade, will be reckoned agin us in the day o' judgment? Sarcumstanced as we are, we can't help it, yon know. I don't s'pose it makes no difference in the sight o' the Lord, long's the heart's all right, hrother Brown."

IRISH ECONOMY.—Pat's master offered him eighteen shillings per week as his wages. Pat shook his head. "What! will not that satisfy you?" inquired his master.

"Faix, an' ye want to ruin me," replied Pat. "I won't take more than twelve shillin's a week, and then if I'm away a week or so, I'll save just six shillin's weekly."

NOT ONE, BUT T'OTHER.—"I don't think, husband, that you are very smart." "No, indeed, wife, but every knows that I am awfully shrewed."

THE LEX TAILORONIS.—In a late trial for the amount of a tailor's bill, it appeared that the clothes supplied did not fit the defendant. "Then," observed the judge, "we must proceed according to the lex tailoronis, and the plaintiff must be non-suited."

SOME people mistake "vale of tears" for "veil of tears," and so go weeping through the world. One would think they fancied virtue to be a species of bulrush, thriving best in wet places.

ONE of the best "hits" ever made at an impropriety in a lady's dress was made by Talleyrand. During the revolution, when asked by a lady his opinion of her dress, he replied, "It began too late and ended too soon."

A GARRULOUS fop, who had annoyed, by his frivolous remarks, his partner in the hall-room, among other empty nothings, asked whether "she had ever had her ears pierced?" "No," was the reply, "but I've often had them bored!"

A CUTE YANKEE.—A Sheriff in Illinois who hates Yankee peddlers as he does "pizen," makes it his especial business to see that this class of itinerating merchants do not vend their wares without a license. This functionary met a peddler lately whom he suspected of violating the statutes, and after pricing a number of his articles purchased a bottle of the "Balm of Columbia," or, as the peddler stated, it "Balm o' Kulumbly, price one dollar good for the har, and assistin' poor human nature," and in reply to the peddler's question whether he wanted anything else, said he did—he wanted to see the peddler's license, which was exhibited, and pronounced "all right." Handing back the bottle to the peddler, the sheriff said, "I don't know that I really want this stuff now, what will you give for it?" "Wal," replied the Yankee, "bein' it's you, Sheriff, I'll give you twenty-five cents for it," and after purchasing it at that low figure, he said to the sheriff, "have you got a peddler's license about your trowsers anywhere?" He allowed he hadn't, and had no use for the article. At the next village the Yankee complained of the sheriff, who was fined eight dollars for vending "Balm o' Kulumbly" without a license.

A LECTURER who was contending at a tire-some length and great tautological perplexity, that "art could not improve nature," was startled "out of his boots" by the question, in a deep, sonorous voice, by one of his audience, "How do you think you would look without your wig?" The question was a "poser"—the argument a non sequitur.

A Down East newspaper in announcing the death of Henry Johnson, of Newburyport, says: "He was an uncle of the Hon. Caleb Cushing, but otherwise a respectable and worthy man."

IN giving the regular toasts at a military entertainment in Cincinnati, not long since, "The Army" was not forgotten, when a distinguished colonel rose, and commenced by saying,

"Here's to the army—may it never want"—and there he rested, colored, stammered, and was completely lost; when a shrewd one sitting at his side whispered, "And may it never be wanted," which the colonel repeated in a clear voice, and which produced the effect of calling down the house.

A HUNGRY traveller who had lost his way on one of the western prairies, stopped at the house of a good parson, who gave him a hearty welcome. Supper was soon announced, and the stranger was asked to "sit by," which he at once proceeded to do; and, without waiting for a second invitation, he laid hold of what he could reach. "Stop! stop!" said the good man of the house, "we are in the habit of saying something here before we eat." This hint to wait till a blessing was asked, the rough customer did not understand, but with his mouth full he muttered, "Go ahead; say what you like; you can't turn my stomach now."

THERE was "some fun" and satire in the olden time as well as now, and much of it was very sharp and biting. Witness the following:

Dr. Byles was a famous Boston punster, but he sometimes met with more than his match. A lady whom he had long courted unsuccessfully, married a man by the name of Quincy.

"So, madam," said the unsuccessful suitor, "It appears that you prefer a Quincy (qinisy) to Byles?"

"Yes; for if there had been anything worse than Byles, God would not have suffered Job to be afflicted with them."

SOME recent clerical voyager says he was one day lying in his berth, and holding himself from falling out, when he heard a brother clergyman in an adjoining berth pitch out upon the floor, tipped out by a sudden roll of the ship.

"What kind of a curve, Brother ———, did the ship describe then?" he asked: "a parabolic curve?"

"No," answered his groaning friend, as he clambered into his berth again, "that was a diabolic curve?"

A MAN was brought into court on the charge of having stolen some ducks from a farmer. "How do you know they are your ducks?" asked the defendant's counsel. "Oh, I should know them anywhere," replied the farmer, who proceeded to describe their peculiarities. "Why" said the prisoner's counsel, "those ducks can't be such a rare breed—I have some very like them in my yard." "That's not unlikely, sir," said the farmer: "they are not the only ducks I've had stolen lately." "Call the next witness."

LAND FOR THE LANDLESS.

ACTION OF CONGRESS ON THE PUBLIC LANDS

THE Public Domain of the United States is still immense, notwithstanding the millions upon millions of acres which have been squandered or passed over to the hands of speculators and monopolists, by the action of the National Government, during the past few years. It is estimated by intelligent persons, who have given their attention to the subject, that lying within the States and Territories of this government there are now about one thousand millions of acres of public lands, still unentered. "What shall be done with this immense domain?" is a question which has for years occupied the minds of thoughtful men, who have the best interests of society at heart. At length, the great question of the proper disposition of these lands has become one of party, and may be stated as follows: "Shall the Public Domain be open to monopoly by speculators, leading inevitably to a landed aristocracy? or shall it be reserved for actual occupants in small quantities, at a nominal price, or without price?" There would be no difficulty whatever in adjusting this question at any time and in the right way, if the Negro question, which, in the National Administration, absorbs or overrides all others, were not behind it. Although this is an old question, it had never commanded, in Congress, the attention to which it is entitled, previous to the organization of the Republican party; because until that time both the great parties into which the country was divided were either controlled, or their action was modified, by the Slaveholding interest of the country. That interest, which is ever vigilant, understands that it cannot well exist where small freeholds prevail, and hence it opposes, with all its great power, all Preemption and Homestead laws, knowing well that if our new States and Territories are to be occupied in quarter-sections, they will be occupied by working farmers, and not by speculators and great planters.

Since this question has assumed a national importance, a concise record of the proceedings and votes in Congress during the session of 1858-9, upon the disposition of the Public Domain, will be of interest to the purchasers of THE TRIBUNE ALMANAC, as a matter of record.

On the 20th January, 1859, (See Congressional Globe, p. 492), a bill relating to preëmptions, reported from the Committee on Public Lands, was pending before the House. The bill proposed to make some changes in the details of existing preëmption laws, but without affecting the substance of the present system of disposing of the public lands. It was, however, in parliamentary order to propose to amend the bill so as to change the present system, and to bring the House to a direct vote upon such propositions. The friends of such change were prompt to avail themselves of this advantage.

Mr. Grow, of Pennsylvania, moved to amend the bill by adding the following as an additional section:

"Be it further enacted, That from and after the passage of this act, no public land shall be exposed to sale by proclamation of the President, unless the same shall have been surveyed, and the return of such survey duly filed in the Land Office, for ten years or more before such sale."

The force and effect of this amendment would be to give the preëmptors ten years the start of the speculators and land monopolists. That is to say: with the addition of Mr. Grow's amendment to the existing laws and regulations touching the Public Lands, they would be open to preëmption ten years before they could come within the grasp of the speculator, thus giving the poor, industrious settler ample time to "clear up" his farm and pay for it from the proceeds of the soil. This was just what the South and the Democracy did not want, as the sequel will show.

The slaveholding aristocracy, who are bold enough when it is necessary to be bold, but who are crafty as well as bold, forthwith resorted to parliamentary tactics to avoid a direct issue upon Mr. Grow's proposition.

Their first movement was a motion to refer the bill and amendment to the Committee of the Whole, familiarly and aptly styled "the tomb of the Capulets." If that reference had been carried, the bill never would have been reached, and would never have been heard of afterward.

The vote upon the motion to refer the bill to the Committee of the Whole was as follows—the Democrats in Roman, the Republicans in Italics, and the Southern Americans in SMALL CAPITALS:

Upon the adoption of Mr. Grow's amendment, the Republican vote, as will be seen, was nnananimously in the affirmative. Of the votes from the Slave States, all but nine were in the negative, and, as we shall presently see, there was only one of that number who was really in favor of it, this one being Mr. Blair, Republican, of Missouri.

Mr. Grow's amendment being incorporated into the bill, the next question was upon the passage of the bill, which was defeated by the following vote :

The defeat of the bill, in consequence of the incorporation into it of Mr. Grow's amendment, shows that a majority of the House was really opposed to that amendment, although it had been adopted by a vote of 98 to 81. Certain members, who did not dare to vote directly against the amendment, joined in killing it afterward, by killing the bill, of which it had been made a part by their own votes.

Thus Messrs. Stewart of Maryland, Atkins, Avery, Jones, and Savage, of Tennessee, and Jewett, Stevenson, and Talbott, of Kentucky, who had voted for the amendment, voted afterward against the bill. Only one, Mr. Blair, of the nine Southern supporters of the amendment, proved true to it in the end, and no other Southern member came to its support in the final vote, saving only Mr. Davis of Maryland, who represents the free-labor interests of the city of Baltimore, rather than the interests or passions of the slaveholding and landed aristocracy of the planting States.

Afterward, on the same day, when these votes upon Mr. Grow's amendment were given, the representatives from Minnesota, both of them members of the Democratic party, delivered speeches, in which they made no secret of their chagrin that a measure so vital to their constituency encountered the nearly unanimous opposition of their political friends. Mr. Cavanaugh, one of the members from Minnesota (Globe, p. 505,) said:

"In reference to the vote on this bill to-day, with an overwhelming majority of this side of the House voting against my colleague and myself, voting against this bill, I say it frankly, I say it in sorrow, that it was to the Republican side of the House to whom we were compelled to look for support of this just and honorable measure. Gentlemen from the South, gentlemen who have broad acres and wide plantations, aided here to-day by their votes more to make Republican States in the North than by any vote which has been cast within the last two years. These gentlemen come here and ask us to support the South; yet they, to a man almost, vote against the free, independent labor of the North and West.

"I, sir, have inherited my Democracy; have been attached to the Democratic party from my boyhood; have believed in the great truths as enunciated by the 'fathers of the faith,' and have cherished them religiously, knowing that, by their faithful application to every department of this Government, this nation has grown up from struggling colonies to prosperous, powerful, and sovereign States. But, sir, when I see Southern gentlemen come up, as I did to-day, and refuse, by their votes, to aid my constituents, refuse to place the actual tiller of the soil, the honest, industrious laborer, beyond the grasp and avarice of the speculator, I tell you, sir, I falter and I hesitate."

The amendment of Mr. Grow, forbidding the public sales of lands for at least ten years after their survey, would secure the great bulk of the lands to preëmtors, and would give them a long pay-day, and thus save them from the enormous usury they are now compelled to pay to money lenders. It would not reduce the revenue derived by the Treasury from the public lands, but would only postpone it, and this postponement would be far less prejudicial to the Government than it would be beneficial to the settler. The Government can borrow money at four and a half per cent. per annum, while the settler frequently pays five per cent. per month for the money to enter his lands, to prevent their sale at public auction.

On the first of February, the question of the Public Lands was again before the House, the pending bill (House bill No. 72) being a bill to secure Homesteads to actual settlers, and being in the words following:

A BILL TO SECURE HOMESTEADS TO ACTUAL SETTLERS ON THE PUBLIC DOMAIN.

SECTION 1.—Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That any person who is the head of a family, or who has arrived at the age of twenty-one years, and is a citizen of the United States, or who shall have filed his intention to become such, as required by the naturalization laws of the United States, shall, from and after the passage of this act, be entitled to enter, free of cost, one quarter-section of vacant and unappropriated public lands which may, at the time the application is made, be subject to private entry, at $1 25 per acre, or a quantity equal thereto, to be located in a body, in conformity with the legal subdivisions of public lands, and after the same shall have been surveyed.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That the person applying for the benefit of this act shall, upon application to the register of the land office in which he or she is about to make such entry, make affidavit before the said register that he or she is the head of a family, or is twenty-one years or more of age, and that such application is made for his or her exclusive use and benefit, and those specially mentioned in this act, and not either directly or indirectly for the use or benefit of any other person or persons whomsoever; and upon making the affidavit as above required, and filing the affidavit with the register, he or she shall thereupon be permitted to enter the quantity of land already specified: Provided, however, That no certificate shall be given or patent issued therefor until the expiration of five years from the date of such entry: and if, at the expiration of such time, or at any time thereafter, the person making such entry, or, if he be dead, his widow, or, in case of her death, his heirs or devisee, or in case of a widow making such entry, her heirs or devisee, in case of her death shall prove by two credible witnesses that he, she, or they, have continued to reside upon and cultivate such land, and still reside upon the same, and have not alienated the same, or any part thereof, then, in such case, he, she, or they, if at that time a citizen of the United States, shall, on payment of ten dollars, be entitled to a patent, as in other cases provided for by law: And provided, further, In case of the death of both father and mother, leaving an infant child or children under twenty-one years of age, the right and the fee shall inure to the benefit of said infant child or children, and the executor, administrator, or guardian, may, at any time within two years after the death of the surviving parent, and in accordance with the laws of the State in which such children for the time being have their domicile, sell said land for the benefit of said infants, but for no other purpose; and the purchaser shall acquire the absolute title by the purchase, and be entitled to a patent from the United States.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That the register of the land office shall note all such applications on the tract-books and plats of his office, and keep a register of all such entries, and make a return thereof to the General Land Office, together with the proof upon which they have been founded.

Sec. 4. And be it further enacted, That all lands acquired under the provisions of this act shall in no event become liable to the satisfaction of any debt or debts contracted prior to the issuing the patent therefor.

Sec. 5. And be it further enacted, That if, at any time after the filing the affidavit, as required in the second section of this act, and before the expiration of the five years aforesaid, it shall be proven, after due notice to the settler, to the satisfaction of the register of the land office, that the person having filed such affidavit shall have actually changed his or her residence, or abandoned the said entry for more than six months at any time, then, and in that event, the land so entered shall revert back to the Government, and be disposed of as other public lands are now by law, subject to an appeal to the General Land Office.

Sec. 6. And be it further enacted, That no individual shall be permitted to make more than one entry under the provisions of this act; and that the Commissioner of the General Land Office is hereby required to prepare and issue such rules and regulations, consistent with this act, as shall be necessary and proper to carry its provisions into effect; and that the registers and receivers of the several land offices shall be entitled to receive the same compensation for any lands entered under the provisions of this act that they are now entitled to receive when the same quantity of land is entered with money, one half to be paid by the person making the application, at the time of so doing, and the other half on the issue of the certificate by the person to whom it may be issued: Provided, That nothing in this act shall be so construed as to impair or interfere in any manner whatever with existing preemption rights.

The previous question having been ordered, the House was brought to a direct vote upon this bill, without debate.

A motion to lay the bill on the table was lost—yeas 77, nays 113; and the bill was then passed—yeas 120, nays 76.

Only three Southern members, Jones of Tennessee, Jewett of Kentucky, and Craig of Missouri, voted for the bill, thereby marking unmistakably the sectional character of the opposition to it.

The Republican vote, with a solitary exception, was given solid for the bill. Of the Northern members, connected with the Democratic party, twenty-nine voted for the bill and six voted against it. Thus, of the entire Democratic vote in the House, a large majority was against the bill, but even this is less important than the other fact, that the Southern wing of the party was almost unanimously against it, being this Southern wing which controls in the party councils, and which, when not voted in the House, has other departments of the Government, the Senate and the President, with which it is more powerful, and by means of which it has so far rarely failed to defeat measures, however popular and beneficial, which it dislikes.

The Homestead bill had now passed the House by a decisive majority, but it had yet to encounter the more dangerous ordeal of the Senate, in which the Democratic majority was larger, and in which the representation of the slaveholding States is proportionately greater.

No direct vote upon the measure was, in fact, reached in the Senate, because the Southern managers would not permit it.

There are two ways of killing off obnoxious measures. One is, to act upon them and vote them down. Another is, to overslaugh them whenever they are proposed, by proceeding to consider some other business. This latter method is invariably resorted to where a measure, obnoxious to a majority of the Senate, is supposed to be acceptable to the people. And it was precisely by this method, and for that reason, that the Homestead bill was run over, shoved aside, evaded, and left unacted upon, by the Senate during its late session. The regular appropriation bills and the bill for the purchase of Cuba were being pressed upon the time of the Senate during the last days of the session, both of them commanding the support of the majority of that body.

On the 17th day of February, Mr. Wade of Ohio, (Con. Globe, page 1074,) moved to postpone all prior orders and take up the Homestead bill, which had passed the House. The following extracts from the debate upon this motion will exhibit the points made:

"MR. WADE. The Homestead bill, to which I am a good deal attached, has, I believe, twice passed the House and come to this body, but somehow it has had the go-by, and we have never had a direct vote upon it here that I know of. I do not propose to discuss it for a single moment, and I hope none of its friends will debate it, because it has been pending before Congress for several years, and I presume every senator is perfectly well acquainted with all its provisions, and has made up his mind as to the course he will pursue in regard to it. I have no hope that anything I could say would win an opponent of the bill to its support; and I hope every friend of the measure will take no time in debate, but will try to get a vote upon it, for I think it is the great measure of the session. All I want, all I ask, is to have a vote upon it.

"Mr. REID, of North Carolina. I think it is too late in the session now to take up this bill to be acted upon here, at least until we act upon other great measures upon which there is more unanimity of sentiment in the country, and a higher sense of duty upon us to pass them during the few days of the session that remain.

"Mr. HUNTER, of Virginia. I believe that a fortnight from to-day will take us to the 3d of March. Now, it is known that we have nearly all the important appropriation bills, and one that is unfinished, to take up. I hope there will be no effort to press this Homestead bill, so as to displace the appropriation bills. I must appeal to the Senate to consider how little of the session is now left to us, and whether we ought not to take up the appropriation bill and dispose of it.

"Mr. SHIELDS, of Minnesota. The friends of this bill desire nothing but a vote upon it, not to waste time in debate. Let us take it up, and have a fair vote upon it.

"Mr. HUNTER. I do not conceal the fact that I am very much opposed to it; but I suppose, whenever this bill comes up, it must be the subject of debate.

"Mr. WILSON, of Massachusetts. I appreciate the anxiety of the senator from Virginia to take up the appropriation bills; but I would suggest to that senator that he allow us to take up this bill, and have a vote upon it. I do not suppose that anybody, who is in favor of the measure, desires to consume the time of the Senate, at this stage of the session, by discussing it. It has been discussed before the nation. It is well understood. I believe it is sustained by an overwhelming majority of the people of the country.

"Mr. WADE. I have no doubt, from the business before us, that this is the last opportunity we shall have to act upon this great measure. I hope, as I said before, every friend of it will stand by it until it is either triumphant or defeated, and that, too, in preference to any other business that may be urged upon us. As to the appropriation bills, I have not the least fear but that they will go through. Their gravitation carries them through."

The question was then taken, and Mr. Wade's motion was carried by the following vote, the Republicans being indicated by italics:

YEAS—Messrs. Bright, Broderick, Chandler, Collamer, Dixon, Doolittle, Fessenden, Foot, Foster, Gwin, Hale, Hamlin, Harlan, Johnson of Tennessee, King, Pugh, Rice, Seward, Shields, Simmons, Smith, Stuart, Trumbull, Wade, and Wilson—26.

NAVS—Messrs. Allen, Bayard, Benjamin,

Bigler, Brown, Chestnut, Clay, Clingman, Davis, Fitch, Fitzpatrick, Green, Hammond, Hunter, Iverson, Lane, Mallory, Mason, Pearce, Reid, Slidell, Toombs, and Ward—23.

Upon an examination of this vote, it will be seen that the Republicans voted unanimously in the affirmative, and that the Southern senators were all in the negative, with the solitary exception of Mr. Johnson of Tennessee. Of the Northern Democrats, Gwin, Bright, Pugh, Rice, Shields, Smith, and Stuart, all being from the new States, voted for Mr. Wade's motion.

The Homestead bill was now up, and, so far as its friends were concerned, nothing was asked but a vote, which would not have consumed ten minutes. But a vote was precisely what the Southern managers were determined to avoid.

Instantly, therefore, upon the announcement of the success of Mr. Wade's motion, which brought the bill before the Senate, Mr. Hunter took the floor, and moved that it be set aside, so as to take up another bill, viz.: the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill.

No question of order was raised upon this motion of Mr. Hunter, but it was well characterized as "child's play," to move to set aside a bill, instantly after a vote to take it up.

Pending some conversational debate upon Mr. Hunter's motion, the hour of twelve o'clock arrived, and the Vice President decided that the Cuba bill, having been assigned for that hour, was the subject pending before the Senate.

Hereupon, Mr. Wade moved to postpone the twelve o'clock order, and continue the consideration of the Homestead bill, and this motion prevailed by the following vote:

YEAS—Messrs. Bell, Bright, Broderick, Chandler, Clark, Collamer, Dixon, Doolittle, Douglas, Durkee, Fessenden, Foot, Foster, Hale, Hamlin, Harlan, Johnson of Tennessee, King, Pugh, Rice, Seward, Simmons, Smith, Stuart, Trumbull, Wade, and Wilson—27.

NAVS—Messrs. Allen, Bates, Benjamin, Bigler, Brown, Clay, Clingman, Davis, Fitch, Fitzpatrick, Green, Gwin, Hammond, Hunter, Iverson, Johnson of Arkansas, Lane, Mallory, Mason, Pearce, Reid, Sebastian, Slidell, Toombs, Ward, and Yulee—26.

On this vote, an additional Southern senator, Mr. Bell of Tennessee, ranged himself on the side of homesteads. But this was offset by the rattling back to the negative side of Mr. Gwin.

The Homestead bill was now again before the Senate, but the question, as stated by the Vice President, was still upon

Mr. Hunter's motion to set it aside, and take up the consular and diplomatic appropriation bill.

Mr. Mason, of Virginia, threatened an "extended debate" upon the homestead bill, if its consideration were insisted upon. He declared, at any rate, for himself that he intended to "go into it pretty largely, because he had not yet known a bill so fraught with mischief, and mischief of the most demoralizing kind."

Mr. Wade and Mr. Seward, in brief and energetic terms, exhorted the friends of the bill to stand firm.

The vote was then taken upon Mr. Hunter's motion, and resulted as follows:

YEAS—Messrs. Allen, Bates, Bayard, Benjamin, Bigler, Brown, Clay, Clingman, Davis, Fitch, Fitzpatrick, Green, Gwin, Hammond, Hunter, Iverson, Johnson of Arkansas, Kennedy, Lane, Mallory, Mason, Pearce, Reid, Sebastian, Slidell, Toombs, Ward, and Yulee—23.

NAYS—Messrs. Bell, Bright, Broderick, Chandler, Clark, Collamer, Dixon, Doolittle, Douglas, Durkee, Fessenden, Foot, Foster, Hale, Hamlin, Harlan, Houston, Johnson of Tennessee, King, Pugh, Rice, Seward, Simmons, Smith, Stuart, Trumbull, Wade, and Wilson—28.

The vote being a tie, the Vice President, Mr. Breckinridge, voted in the affirmative, and thus, after a long struggle, the Homestead bill was, for that day, oversloughed.

Of the twenty-eight votes for oversloughing it, all but five are from the South, and one of these five, Mr. Gwin, is only a temporary resident of a Free State.

Of the twenty-eight votes in favor of sustaining the bill, only three are from the South.

Two days afterward, on the 19th of February, Mr. Wade again moved to set aside all prior orders and take up the Homestead bill; but this motion was negatived by the following vote:

YEAS—Messrs. Broderick, Chandler, Clark, Collamer, Dixon, Doolittle, Durkee, Fessenden, Foot, Hale, Hamlin, Harlan, Johnson of Tennessee, Jones, King, Pugh, Rice, Seward, Shields, Simmons, Stuart, Trumbull, Wade, and Wilson—24.

NAYS—Messrs. Allen, Bates, Bayard, Benjamin, Bigler, Bright, Brown, Chestnut, Clay, Clingman, Crittenden, Davis, Fitch, Fitzpatrick, Green, Hammond, Houston, Hunter, Iverson, Kennedy, Mallory, Mason, Pearce, Polk, Reid, Sebastian, Slidell, Smith, Toombs, Ward, and Yulee—31.

Upon these two days, the 17th and 19th of February, the question was made between the consideration of the Homestead bill and the consideration of the appropriation bill, the necessity of passing which last hills did not fail to be insisted upon by the Democratic managers. At a subsequent stage of the session, as will be presently seen, the question was made between considering the Homestead bill and considering the Cuba bill.

Upon the 25th day of February, upon the occasion of a motion by Mr. Slidell to postpone all prior orders and take up the bill for the purchase of Cuba, Mr. Doolittle resisted it, and called upon the friends of homesteads to vote it down, so that he himself might submit a motion to take up the Homestead bill. Mr. Doolittle said:

"I think it would be better to take up this question of the Homestead bill and vote upon it, and then the Cuba bill will come up. I ask the friends of the Homestead bill now to stand by it and give it the preference."

The vote was then taken, and the motion to take up the Cuba bill prevailed, as follows:

YEAS—Messrs. Allen, Bayard, Bell, Benjamin, Bigler, Brown, Chestnut, Clay, Clingman, Davis, Fitch, Fitzpatrick, Green, Gwin, Hammond, Houston, Hunter, Iverson, Jones, Lane, Mallory, Mason, Polk, Pugh, Reid, Rice, Sebastian, Shields, Slidell, Smith, Stuart, Toombs, Ward, Wright, and Yulee—35.

NAYS—Messrs. Broderick, Cameron, Chandler, Clark, Collamer, Dixon, Doolittle, Douglas, Durkee, Fessenden, Foot, Foster, Hale, Hamlin, Harlan, Johnson of Tennessee, Kennedy, King, Pearce, Seward, Simmons, Trumbull, Wade, and Wilson—24.

The Cuba bill was now up, and the discussion upon it protracted the session late into the night, and almost into the next morning. It was distinctly seen during the progress of this discussion that it would be without practical result, and that no vote could be reached before the final adjournment of Congress.

Accordingly, at ten o'clock in the evening, Mr. Doolittle felt it to be his duty to renew the attempt to set aside the Cuba bill, the subject-matter of a manifestly idle debate, so as to take up the Homestead bill. His motion to that effect, and the commencement of the debate upon it, will be found on page 1351 of the Congressional Globe. Such extracts are made as will exhibit its general character:

"Mr. TRUMBULL. If there was any assurance that the Homestead bill could be taken up, after the Cuba question was disposed of, I should be willing to see it have the go-by on the present occasion; but we have sought repeatedly to bring up the Homestead bill, and every movement that has been made to bring it up has been met with a counter movement, crowding it out of the way with something else. . . . If the senator from Virginia will give us an assurance that we shall have a chance to bring up the Homestead bill, and keep it before the Senate until we can get a vote upon it, after the Cuba bill is through, and that he will not interpose an appropriation bill, I would join with gentlemen in asking my friend from Wisconsin to withdraw the motion he has made.

"Mr. HUNTER. I certainly will press the appropriation bills. I will give no promise to vote to take up the Homestead bill.

"Mr. TRUMBULL.—That is as I expected. We now have notice that we are to be met with an appropriation bill the moment that the Cuba question is disposed of, and here we are wasting our time at this stage of the session in making long speeches, and debating about the acquisition of a country that does not belong to us, instead of providing for the settlement of the country which we own. There can be no hope of getting up the Homestead bill as against an appropriation bill.

"Mr. SEWARD.—After nine hours yielding to the discussion of the Cuba question, it is time to come back to the great question of the day and the age. The Senate may as well meet face to face the issue which is before them. It is an issue presented by the competition between these two questions. One, the Homestead bill, is a question of homes, of lands for the landless freemen of the United States. The Cuba bill is a question of slaves for the slaveholders of the United States.

"Mr. WADE.—I am very glad that this question has at length come up. I am glad, too, that it has antagonized with this nigger question. [Laughter.] I have been trying here for nearly a month to get a straight-forward vote upon this great measure of land for the landless. I glory in that measure. It is the greatest that has ever come before the American Senate, and it has now come so that there is no dodging it. The question will be, shall we give niggers to the niggerless, or lands to the landless?

"I moved some days ago to take up this subject. It was said then that there was an appropriation bill that stood in the way. The senator from Virginia had his appropriation bills. It was important, then, that they should be settled at once; there was danger that they would be lost, and the government would stop in consequence; and the appeal was made to gentlemen to give this bill the go-by for the time being, at all events, and the appeal was successful. The appropriation bills lie very easy now behind this nigger operation. [Laughter.] When you come to niggers for the niggerless, all other questions sink into insignificance."

Mr. Doolittle's motion to set aside the Cuba bill for the purpose of taking up the Homestead bill, was lost, by the following vote:

YEAS—Messrs. Broderick, Cameron, Clark, Chandler, Collamer, Doolittle, Fessenden, Foot, Foster, Hale, Hamlin, Harlan, Johnson of Tennessee, King, Seward, Simmons, Trumbull, Wade, and Wilson—19.

NAYS—Messrs. Allen, Benjamin, Bayard, Bigler, Brown, Chestnut, Clay, Clingman, Douglas, Fitch, Fitzpatrick, Green, Gwin, Hunter, Iverson, Johnson of Arkansas, Lane, Mallory, Mason, Polk, Pugh, Reid, Rice, Sebastian, Shields, Slidell, Toombs, Ward and Wright—29.

This was the last attempt made to get up the Homestead bill in the Senate. It had first been overslaughed by the appropriation bills, and now by the Cuba bill, and no expectation remained of reaching it during the few remaining days of the session. The Republicans, who had endeavored to get it up in all forms and on all occasions without success, felt it to be their duty to abandon a manifestly hopeless struggle.

From this review of the votes in the Senate and House, it will be seen that the two great national parties, the one representing the rights and interests of free labor, and the other representing the pretensions and interests of negro slavery, have come to a well-defined issue upon this great matter of the disposition of the public domain.

In the House, we see the Republicans voting with unanimity for a proposition to secure to preëmtors all the public lands for the term of ten years after their survey, forbidding, during that time, their disposition either at public sale or by private entry, and giving to the preëmtor a pay-day which would save him from usury, by giving him time to provide means out of his crops wherewith to buy his freehold. Afterward, we find these same Republicans in the House voting with the same unanimity for a Homestead bill. It is probable, and indeed is known, that some Republicans preferred one measure to the other, but they voted for both, being agreed in the main object, which was to preserve the public domain for the actual settler and small cultivator, and being willing to waive differences of opinion as to detail, so long as the main object should be at all events secured.

In the Senate, we witness the same unanimity on the Republican side in favor of the Homestead bill, and should have witnessed it upon the proposition to prohibit public sales of lands for ten years after their survey, if a vote upon that proposition could have been reached.

On the side of the Democratic party, we witness an opposition to both these measures, not indeed absolutely unanimous, but of such a character as to render it conclusively certain that that party will continue to oppose those measures to the end.

THE FOREIGN SLAVE TRADE.

WHEN John Quincy Adams, William Slade, Joshua R. Giddings, George N. Briggs, and ten or twelve other sentinels of Freedom warned the people, as early as 1842, that it was the design of the Democracy to annex Texas to the United States, the unthinking public poh poked and the Democracy ridiculed the idea. When, two years later, Martin Van Buren, who was opposed to Annexation, was thrown overboard by the Democratic National Convention, because of such opposition, and James K. Polk was nominated in his stead, the people began faintly to comprehend what was in prospect. Mr. Clay was put in nomination by the Whigs, and that eminent statesman and his friends assured the public that Mr. Polk's election would inevitably result in the annexation of Texas, to be followed by a wasteful and demoralizing war with Mexico—a view of the case which was stoutly denied by the Democracy. After a hotly contested canvass Mr. Polk was elected President. Texas was annexed, and the war followed, at an expense to the United States of about two hundred millions of dollars (more than enough to construct a Railway to the Pacific), and twenty thousand lives, to say nothing of the national disgrace of having deliberately picked a quarrel with a weak neighboring Republic for the sake of dismembering her. In 1856 the Republican leaders interpreted the Democratic creed as put forth by the National Convention of that party, and familiarly known as the "Cincinnati Platform," as a scheme to buy or steal Cuba, to carry Slavery into the Territories, and particularly to subjugate Kansas, all at the dictation and for the benefit of the Slave Oligarchy. Although this explanation of the platform was vehemently denied by the Democracy during the Presidential canvass of '56, yet, if it has not all become literally true, it is because the administration of Mr. Buchanan has lacked the power and not the disposition to prove it so. By a previously understood arrangement, the Supreme Court, in the Dred Scott case, has declared Slavery to be the law of the Territories (the Dred Scott decision, it will be remembered, was foreshadowed in Mr. Buchanan's Inaugural Address); the whole power and patronage of the Administration was vainly used to enslave Kansas, and the thirty million scheme for obtaining Cuba, was pressed upon Congress by all the power of the Executive, and all, or nearly all, the strength of the South.

During the Presidential Campaign of 1856, it was predicted by prominent Republicans that should the Democracy triumph in that struggle, it was by no means improbable that the re-opening of the African Slave Trade would form a plank in the Democratic National Platform for 1860. Whether this prediction shall become history or not, it is undeniable that a marked change is taking place in the public mind, or at least in the Southern Democratic mind, on the subject of this piratical and murderous trade; and this change indicates anything but improvement in the morals of the South. The rapid growth of the Southern sentiment in favor of re-opening the Slave Trade is not only indicated by the facts that cargoes of Slaves have recently been landed in the ports of the Southern States, and openly sold to Slave-traders and planters there, and that Southern Courts and Juries utterly refuse to convict parties guilty of this peculiar form of piracy, in the face of the most positive and conclusive testimony, but by the proceedings and debates in Congress during the Session of 1858-59.

In 1856, Mr. Etheridge, of Tennessee, offered strong resolutions in reprobation of the Slave Trade in the House of Representatives, when no single member was found on that floor bold enough to express any sympathy for the infernal traffic. Mr. Etheridge's resolutions, after being softened a little in their phraseology by an amendment offered by Mr. Orr, of South Carolina, were passed with only eight dissenting votes; and even these were given, professedly, not from any objection to the sentiments expressed in the Resolution, but from opposition to the adoption of any resolutions whatever upon the ground that the revival of the African Slave Trade was not a practical question before the country. The Consular and Diplomatic Appropriation bill, which passed at the second session of the XXXVth Congress, contained a clause appropriating $75,000 to enable the President of the U. S. to carry into effect the Act of March 3, 1819, the proposed appropriation being based upon an Executive statement of the expenses incurred and to be incurred in the return to Africa of the negroes rescued from the slaver Echo.

In the House, on the 27th of January, two motions in respect to this appropriation were voted upon; one made by Mr. Dowdell, of Alabama, to strike out the appropriation altogether, and the other made by Mr. Crawford, of Georgia, to reduce the appropriation from seventy-five to forty-five thousand dollars, so as to cut off the sum proposed to be paid to the Colonization Society for maintaining and educating the negroes for one year after their delivery in Africa.

In substance there was no difference, in intent, or in effect, between these two motions. The adoption of either, nullified and practically abrogated the act of March 3, 1819. The motion of Mr. Dowdell left no provision for the expenses of returning rescued negroes to Africa, or of supporting them prior to their return. The motion of Mr. Crawford would leave them to be thrown naked upon the coast of Africa, there to perish by hunger or violence; a course of procedure so repugnant to humanity, as to be certain to render the act of March 3, 1819, odious, and thereby to bring about its repeal.

The motion of Mr. Dowdell was negatived, Yeas 28, Nays 163. Those who voted in the affirmative, were as follows:

SOUTH CAROLINA—Messrs. Bonham, Boyce, McQueen, and Miles—4.

TENNESSEE—Messrs. Avery, Maynard, and Wright—3.

TEXAS—Mr. Bryan—1.

VIRGINIA—Messrs. Caskie, and Goode—2.

FLORIDA—Mr. Hawkins—1.

ALABAMA—Messrs. Cobb, Curry, Dowdell, Houston, Moore, Shorter, and Stallworth—7.

GEORGIA—Messrs. Crawford, Gartrell, Seward, Stephens, and Trippe—5.

LOUISIANA—Davidson and Sandidge—2.

MISSISSIPPI—McRae and Singleton—2.

NORTH CAROLINA—Mr. Ruffin—1. Total, 28.

The motion of Mr. Crawford was negatived, Yeas, 50, Nays 145. Those who voted in the affirmative, were as follows:

TENNESSEE—Messrs. Avery, Maynard, Watkins, Wright, and Zollicoffer—5.

MISSISSIPPI—Messrs. Barksdale, McRae, and Singleton—3.

VIRGINIA—Messrs. Bocock, Caskie, Edmundson, Garnett, Goode, Hopkins, Jenkins, Letcher, and Smith—9.

SOUTH CAROLINA—Messrs. Bonham, Boyce, McQueen, and Miles—4.

NORTH CAROLINA—Messrs. Branch, Ruffin, Shaw, and Vance—4.

TEXAS—Mr. Bryan—1.

KENTUCKY—Messrs. Burnett, Clay, Peyton, Stevenson, and Talbott—5.

ALABAMA—Messrs. Cobb, Curry, Dowdell, Moore, and Stallworth—5.

GEORGIA—Messrs. Crawford, Gartrell, Jackson, Seward, Stephens, and Trippe—6.

LOUISIANA—Messrs. Davidson, Eustis, and Sandidge—3.

FLORIDA—Mr. Hawkins—1.

ILLINOIS—Mr. Hodges—1.

NORTH CAROLINA—Messrs. Ruffin, Shaw, and Vance—3. Total, 50.

Of the one hundred and forty-five votes against Mr. Crawford's motion, only nineteen were from the Slave States, as follows:

MISSOURI—Messrs. Anderson, Caruthers, Craig, and Phelps—4.

MARYLAND—Messrs. Bowie, Davis, Ricaud, and Stewart—4.

NORTH CAROLINA—Messrs. Gilmer and Winslow—2.

ARKANSAS—Mr. Greenwood—1.

TENNESSEE—Messrs. Jones and Smith—2.

KENTUCKY—Messrs. Marshall, Mason, and Underwood—3.

VIRGINIA—Mr. Millson—1.

DELAWARE—Mr. Whiteley—1.

GEORGIA—Mr. Wright—1. Total, 19.

Thus, of the sixty-eight Slave-State members present and voting, forty-nine voted for Mr. Crawford's motion. Of the absentees, Mr. Woodson, of Missouri, who came in after the vote was declared, said he should have voted for the motion, if he had arrived in season.

Another motion in respect to this appropriation, had been voted upon in Committee of the Whole on the 26th of January. This was made by Mr. Bonham, of South Carolina, and being rejected in Committee of the Whole, there is no record to show who supported it.

Mr. Bonham's motion was to qualify the appropriation by the following proviso:

"Provided, That no part of this sum shall be used for schooling the children, or for instructing the children and adults in the arts of civilized life."

Mr. Bonham said, among other things:

"It is now, for the first time, that we have an instance in an appropriation bill for teaching Africans the arts of civilized life. This is the point."

Mr. Bonham could tolerate nothing, which treated Africans as if they were capable of being civilized, or which implied the idea, that it was desirable to civilize them.

The opposition in the House to the appropriation for the expenses of the Echo negroes, was carried to an unusual extreme. The principal portion of the men concerned in it, having failed to strike the appropriation out of the Consular and Diplomatic Appropriation bill, voted against the passage of the bill itself, and succeeded in defeating it three times. They did this, although they were the political friends of the Administration, and under party obligations to sustain the general appropriation bills for carrying on the Government. This violent course of procedure, proposing to sacrifice an entire appropriation bill rather than submit to an obnoxious section, marks the rancor and desperation of the partisans of the African Slave Trade.

In the Senate this appropriation for the Echo negroes gave rise to the same discussions which it had excited in the House.

Mr. Clay, of Alabama, moved to strike out the whole appropriation, but, just before the vote was taken on the 16th of February, he so modified his motion as to propose to strike out $75,000 and insert $45,000, being a motion similar to that made in the House by Mr. Crawford.

Mr. Clay's motion was negatived, Yeas 12, Nays 40, the following senators voting for it:

Messrs. Chestnut, Clay, Davis, Fitzpatrick, Hammond, Iverson, Johnson of Tennessee, Mason, Reid, Thompson of Kentucky, Toombs, and Ward—all from the Slave States.

Of the forty negative votes, twelve were from the Slave States, (if we reckon Delaware as such) as follows:

Messrs. Bates, Bell, Benjamin, Crittenden, Green, Houston, Hunter, Mallory, Pearce, Polk, Slidell, and Yulee.

Let us now examine what was said in the debates in Congress upon this Echo appropriation.

In the House, on the 25th of January, Mr. Dowdell, of Alabama, said:

"I will take this occasion to say, without discussing the expediency of reopening the Slave Trade, a matter which properly belongs to the sovereign States whose industrial policy is to be affected by it, that the laws are highly offensive in defining that to be piracy upon the high seas which is not robbery, and in attaching the death penalty to an act which in itself is not necessarily immoral."

Mr. Clay, of Kentucky (a son of the Henry Clay who was for so many years President of the American Colonization Society), said:

"I am opposed to all these laws on our statute book in relation to the Slave Trade, and I will not vote a dollar for the purpose."

In the House, on the next day, (January 26th) Mr. Crawford, of Georgia, said:

"In 1819, the whole South was unanimously against the Slave Trade. Now, it is becoming divided, and unless the war upon Slavery is stopped, fifteen years will witness the trade open for the South, and our then Mexican possessions reaching to Guatemala certainly, and probably further South."

Mr. Seward, of Georgia, said:

"I look upon the law for the suppression of the Slave Trade as mischievous and wrong, and a violation of the Constitution."

"I want to have that law repealed, I want to leave this matter to be settled by the States as a domestic question."

Mr. Miles, of South Carolina, said:

"I am not prepared to advocate the reopening of the Slave Trade, but I am prepared to advocate, with all my mind and strength, the sweeping away from our statute book, of laws which stamp the people of my section as pirates, and put a stigma upon their institutions."

In the House, on the 27th of January, Mr. Crawford, of Georgia, said:

"This question of opening the Slave Trade is one of the highest importance, and one which threatens to make and unmake parties in the country. It is a question which grows stronger and stronger every day, and I believe the result of it will be the building up and tearing down of party platforms."

In the debate in the Senate, February 16, Mr. Mason, of Virginia, and Mr. Brown, of Mississippi, both maintained that humanity required that the Echo negroes should have been retained in the United States as slaves.

Mr. Brown, referring to the law against the Slave Trade, said :

"I would repeal the law, repeal it instantly, as not based upon the Constitution, which we are sworn to support."

Some other proceedings in Congress at the same session, in connection with the Slave Trade, are deserving of notice.

On the 23d of December, Mr. Blair, of Missouri, asked leave to submit the following resolution :

"Resolved, That the Committee on the Judiciary be, and hereby is, instructed to report a bill more effectually to prevent the Slave Trade, under the guise of the 'coolie trade' so called, or of 'apprentices, or of 'African labor importation companies,' or under any other name or in any other guise, the real purpose or effect of which may be, directly or indirectly, immediately or ultimately, to make slaves of the persons so procured and transported."

Unanimous consent being required, objection was made by Mr. Houston, of Alabama.

On the same day, Mr. Kilgore, of Indiana, asked leave to submit the following resolution :

"Resolved, That the President of the United States be requested to report to this House, what information has been received by him in regard to the recent importation of slaves from Africa into Georgia, and what steps, if any, have been taken to punish this violation of the laws of the United States."

Unanimous consent being required, objection was made by Mr. Garnett, of Virginia.

On the 26th of January, the Committee of the Whole House having under consideration the Consular and Diplomatic Appropriation bill, Mr. Seward, of Georgia, moved the following as an amendment :

"Provided, further, That all the laws heretofore passed, prohibiting the Slave Trade, be and the same are hereby repealed. And that the policy of restricting the foreign Slave Trade be left with each of the States, as affecting their own local policy."

This amendment was not voted upon, being ruled to be out of order.

On the 23rd of December, Mr. Sandidge, of Louisiana, introduced a resolution, which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs, for the abrogation of that article of the Ashburton treaty which requires the keeping of a squadron on the coast of Africa, for the suppression of the Slave Trade.

On the 31st of January, Mr. Kilgore, of Indiana, asked leave to submit the following resolutions :

"Whereas the laws prohibiting the African Slave Trade have become a topic of discussion with newspaper writers and political agitators, many of them boldly denouncing these laws as unwise in policy and disgraceful in their provisions, and insisting on the justice and propriety of their repeal, and the revival of the odious traffic in African slaves ; and whereas recent demonstrations afford strong reasons to apprehend that said laws are to be set at defiance, and their violation openly countenanced and encouraged by a portion of the citizens of some of the States of this Union ; and whereas it is proper, in view of said facts, that the sentiment of the people's representatives in Congress should be made public in relation thereto : Therefore,

"1. Resolved, That while we recognize no right, on the part of the Federal Government or any other law-making power save that of the States wherein it exists, to interfere with or disturb the institution of domestic Slavery where it is established or protected by State legislation, we do hold that Congress has power to prohibit the foreign traffic, and that no legislation can be too thorough in its measures, nor can any penalty known to the catalogue of modern punishment for crime be too severe against a traffic so inhuman and unchristian.

"2. Resolved, That the laws in force against said traffic are founded upon the broadest principles of philanthropy, religion, and humanity ; that they should remain unchanged except so far as legislation may be needed to render them more efficient ; and that they should be faithfully and promptly executed by our Government, and respected by all good citizens.

"3. Resolved, That the Executive should be sustained and commended for any proper effort, whenever and wherever made, to enforce said laws, and to bring to speedy punishment the wicked violators thereof, and all their aiders and abettors."

Mr. Burnett, of Kentucky, objected to the introduction of these resolutions, but it being in order on that day to move a suspension of the rules, Mr. Kilgore moved that they be suspended, so that his resolutions might be considered. The suspension of the rules was not carried, Yeas 115, Nays 84—not two-thirds.

Of the affirmative votes, only five were from the Slave States, as follows :

MARYLAND—Messrs. Bowie, Davis, and Ricard.

NORTH CAROLINA—Mr. Gilmer.

KENTUCKY—Mr. Marshall.

And of these five, only one, Mr. Bowie, belongs to the Democratic party.

The negative vote came, as to the bulk of it, from the Slave States. The balance was contributed by their Northern allies, as follows :

Messrs. Barr, Florence, Gallis, Gregg, Lawrence W. Hall, Hodges, Miller, Nib lack, Searing, Aaron Shaw, Robert Smith, George Taylor, Vallandigham, White, and Wortendyke—15.

The favor into which the Slave Trade has of late grown in the South comes very naturally from the change of sentiment on the subject of Slavery itself. Until within a few years the Institution had been generally regarded at the South as an evil to be tolerated only until such time as it could be conveniently and safely abolished. Now the leading lights of the South regard it, or profess to regard it, as a good to be cherished and extended. If these gentlemen are right, and the fathers of the Republic, both North and South, were mistaken in their views with reference to Slavery per se, then it would certainly be difficult logically to demonstrate that the Foreign Slave Trade is an evil and a wrong. But it will probably require something beyond the mere assertion of these new lights, however vehemently uttered, to convince the great body of the American people that they are so very much wiser than their fathers and grand-fathers.

KANSAS.

OUR last summary of Kansas affairs concluded with the rejection by the People of the Territory, by a most decisive majority, of the bogus Lecompton Constitution. Shortly after, Governor Denver resigned, and Samnel Medary, of Ohio, was appointed to succeed him. A comparative lull in the fierce excitement, of which Kansas had so long been the scene, followed the concession which the government at Washington had at last been compelled to make to the popular sentiment. But about Fort Scott, on the southeastern borders of the Territory, armed collisions still continued to occur between the Free-State and the Pro-Slavery men, the latter backed by sympathizing friends in Missouri. The policy adopted by Medary was substantially that followed by Denver, of leaving matters, as far as possible, to regulate themselves. The Territorial Legislature, in which the Republicans had secured a majority, met early in January. The Controller reported the taxable property in the Territory at $25,000,000, exclusive of preëmption claims, and the number of acres of land paid for and in the possession of individuals at about three millions.

The most noticeable laws of this session were an act repealing the bogus laws; a new apportionment act; an act for referring to the people the question of a new Constitutional Convention, the election to be held on the third Monday in March; and, finally, an amnesty act, putting a stop to the various prosecutions for political offences which had been commenced in the southeastern counties, and which had the effect finally to quiet the disturbances, amounting in fact to civil war, of which those counties had so long been the scene. The Legislature also passed a bill abolishing and prohibiting Slavery in the Territory, but so late in the session that the Governor was able to defeat it by omitting to sign it. At midnight, when the session closed, a bonfire was made of all the bogus statutes that could be found.

The election on the question of a new Constitutional Convention resulted in a majority of 3,831 in its favor; and, this result being ascertained, the Governor issued his proclamation for an election of delegates. The old party organizations were now abandoned, and those of Republicans and Democrats substituted, and it was on this basis that the canvass for the election of delegates proceeded. The Convention was to consist of fifty-two delegates. The Democrats proclaimed themselves disciples of Mr. Douglas and his Territorial-Sovereignty doctrine, and decidedly opposed to making Kansas a Slave State. The Leavenworth district, where, through its contractors for army supplies, the Government exercised a great influence, and which from its population was entitled to ten delegates, elected the Democratic ticket, not, however, without the aid of fraudulent votes. But the Republicans, by their predominance in other parts of the Territory, succeeded in securing a majority in the Convention of thirty-five to seventeen.

The Convention met at Wyandot on the 5th of July, and adjourned on the 27th of the same month, after adopting a Constitution by a vote of thirty-four to thirteen, all the Democrats present voting against it and refusing to sign it. They had strenuously contended, in the Convention, for the annexation to Kansas of that part of Nebraska south of the Platte; for retaining as a part of the new State the western gold region about Pike's Peak, which was beginning to attract great numbers of immigrants; for the exclusion from the State of free negroes, and for the prohibition of bank issues, but had been defeated as to all these points.

By the Constitution, as adopted, the boundaries of the new State were declared to be the State of Missouri on the east, the 37th parallel of north latitude on the south, the 41st parallel of north latitude on the north, and the 23rd meridian of longitude west from Washington on the west. The western boundary cuts off the Pike's Peak region and the desert which bounds it on the east, and limits the new State to the habitable eastern portion of the Territory, embracing an area of some sixty thousand square miles. The executive is to consist of a Governor, Secretary of State, Auditor, Attorney-General, and Superintendent of Public Schools, to be chosen by the people and to serve for two years. The House of Representatives is to consist of seventy-five members, to serve one year, and the senate of twenty-five senators, to serve two years, the numbers to be regulated by law, but never to exceed one hundred representatives, and thirty-three Senators. The pay is to be three dollars a day and fifteen cents per mile travel. All bills must originate with the House, and no act can include more than one subject. The Supreme Court is to consist of three Judges, to be chosen by the people, to hold office for six years, one to go out every two years. There are to be five District Judges to be chosen by the people of their respective districts, and to serve for four years. Each county is to choose a Judge of Probate, to serve for two years, and each township is to choose Justices of the Peace, to serve also for two years. Elections are to be by ballot. Every white male who is a citizen of the United States, or who has declared his intention to become one, having been a resident in the State for six months, and in the precinct for thirty days, is entitled to vote.

The State is prohibited from becoming a party in carrying on any work of internal improvements, nor can any debt, to exceed a million of dollars, be contracted, unless the question be previously submitted to, and the debt authorized by, a popular vote; and in all cases a special tax must be levied sufficient to pay the interest and provide a sinking fund adequate to meet the principal when it becomes due. All corporations, banks included, must be established under general laws only, and the corporators made liable to twice the amount of their stock. The sale of lottery tickets is prohibited. The schedule annexed to the Constitution claimed of Congress $500,000, or in lieu thereof, 500,000 acres of land to meet the claims audited to mostly that amount for losses incurred by citizens of Kansas during the late troubles. The Commissioners had declined to entertain the claim of the New-England Emigrant Aid Society, to the amount of $25,000, for the destruction of their hotel at Lawrence, on the ground that they had no authority to act on any claims except those presented by citizens of Kansas, and the Convention declined to go beyond the report of the Commissioners.

A grant is asked from Congress of 4,550,000 acres of land for internal improvements, also the swamp lands of the State to be appropriated as a school fund.

Prefixed to the Constitution is a Bill of Rights, which includes a prohibition of Slavery. This Bill of Rights also provides that no person shall be incompetent to testify on account of his religious belief.

By a provision of the schedule, this Constitution was submitted to a popular vote on the first Tuesday in October, which resulted in its ratification by the people by a majority of some four thousand. The Territorial election in November attracted but little interest from the general expectation of the admission of the State under the new Constitution. The Republicans, however, succeeded in electing their delegate to Congress and a majority of the Legislature.

The first State Election under this Constitution was held December 6, 1859. The returns from this election, as we put these pages to press, are incomplete, but leave no reasonable doubt of the success of the entire Republican ticket, viz.: Charles Robinson for Governor, Martin F. Conway for Congress, etc.

THE ITALIAN WAR.

THE Austrian rule established over the Lombardo-Venetian provinces of Italy, by the treaty of Vienna in 1815, was from the first very irksome to the Italians. They not only accused Austria of ruling her own provinces with a heavy hand, but of being the support of arbitrary government in the other Italian states. The first attempt to get rid of the Austrians was set on foot in 1819 or 1820, by the secret society of the Carbonari. The then presumptive heir of the crown of Sardinia, afterward the king Charles Albert, is said to have been a member of that society, though upon its failure he fell into disgrace with his associates, as having saved himself by treachery. However that may have been, he still continued to entertain the idea of expelling the Austrians. When, in 1848, the people of the Lombardo-Venetian provinces rose in arms, drove out the Austrian troops, and constituted themselves into two republics, Charles Albert, the king of Sardinia, having just given to his subjects a representative constitution, offered the aid of his army to the Lombards and Venetians, who agreed to accept him as king. But Charles Albert proved unable to cope with the Austrians under Radetzky, who soon entered Italy in force. The battle of Novarra settled the question, and the defeated Charles Albert abdicated in favor of his son, Victor Emanuel, the present king, to whom the Austrians—then hard pressed in other quarters—granted a peace, on condition of his paying the expenses of the war.

The Austrian predominance in Italy was thus reestablished. But Sardinia retained her free constitution, and, being wisely governed, gradually strengthened herself at home, while she drew toward her the hopes and good wishes of the patriotic party in the other Italian states, to whom Austrian rule and influence continued distasteful as ever. Austria, on the other hand, under the plea of preventing revolutionary movements, which, once set on foot, might spread to her own discontented provinces, occupied with garrisons the northern papal cities as well as the duchies of Modena, Parma and Tuscany, with whose princes she had negotiated treaties authorizing her to do so.

Sardinia, by means of her quota of troops contributed to the Crimean war, became entitled to a representative in the Paris Conference in 1856. The affairs of Italy were introduced into that conference by Walewski, the minister of France. He declared the emperor's willingness to withdraw the French army of occupation from Rome, if Austria would at the same time withdraw her troops from the papal Legations. He suggested, too, that the Congress might hint to the king of Naples their disapprobation of his tyrannical proceedings, as dangerous to the tranquillity of his dominions, and, by consequence, to the peace of Europe. The Count Cavour, the Sardinian minister, thereupon took occasion to suggest that misgovernment and consequent discontent were not confined to Naples, but existed also in the Italian dominions of Austria. He complained, also, of the constant increase of Austrian troops in Italy, which obliged Sardinia to maintain her army on a war footing. The Congress took no action on this subject, though it seemed to be agreed that the withdrawal of both French and Austrian troops from the papal dominions was much to be desired.

From that time, the mutual jealousies and suspicions of Sardinia and Austria grew more and more marked. Sardinia was regarded by Austria as waiting an opportunity to take the lead in a new attempt to expel her from Italy, while Sardinia accused Austria of designs against her independence, and of aiming at, and indeed, already exercising, a control over Italy which the treaty of Vienna never intended to give her.

At the diplomatic reception at Paris on New Year's Day, 1859, Napoleon addressed to the Austrian minister a few words, to the effect that the relations between France and Austria were not so cordial as he could wish. This gave to Europe the first intimation that France had determined to support Sardinia in her reclamations against Austria. This idea received confirmation from the marriage, which speedily followed, of the Emperor's cousin, the son of Jerome, to a daughter of the King of Sardinia. On the side both of Austria and Sardinia, preparations were at once made for war. Additional Austrian troops were hastily marched into Italy and advanced toward the Sardinian frontier, while Sardinia strained every effort to put herself on a war footing, and accepted the services of volunteers from the neighboring Italian states, who, to the number of several thousands, offered their services. France, also, quietly made preparations. France and Sardinia were understood to demand that Austria should withdraw her garrisons from the other Italian states, and should confine herself strictly within her own provinces. England, alarmed at the prospect of war, offered her mediation. As the parties could not be brought to terms, a European Congress was proposed to settle the conditions of an arrangement. The preliminaries of a Congress were agreed to by England, Prussia, Russia, and France; but Austria, not disposed to concede to others the control of her Italian policy, finally broke off the negotiation, and, on the 21st of April, sent an ultimatum to Sardinia, demanding her instant disarmament, and the disbandment of her volunteers, allowing three days for an answer, and threatening war in case of refusal. The English Government, hitherto inclined to support Austria, warmly protested against this proceeding, but only succeeded in delaying the invasion for a few days. The Austrians, 120,000 strong, crossed the Ticino on the 29th of April. Their policy was supposed to be to strike at and destroy the Sardinian army, some 60,000 strong, before aid from France could arrive. But this intention, if entertained, was defeated, not only by the slowness characteristic of Austrian military movements, but by floods of rain, which swelled all the rivers, and made the roads almost impassable.

Meanwhile, French troops were poured into Italy with wonderful rapidity. One column was transported in steamers from Marseilles to Genoa; another advanced over the Alps by the road of Mont Cenis. Within three weeks, the Austrians found themselves confronted by a hundred thousand French troops, in addition to the Sardinian army. The dukes of Tuscany, Parma and Modena drove off their dukes, who adhered to Austria, and declared in favor of the Allies, thus exposing Lombardy to a flank attack. On the 19th of May, the Austrians commenced a retrograde movement. On the 21st occurred the first considerable engagement at Montebello. Count Stadion, at the head of 15,000 Austrians, thrown forward to make a reconnaissance, was repulsed by an advanced French division of 6,000 men under General Forey, with a loss in killed and wounded of 1,300 men. The French, who were supported by a regiment of Sardinian cavalry, admitted a loss or half that number. On the 30th of May, the Sardinians, led by their king, passed the Sesia in the face of the Austrians, who were fortified at Palestro. That village was attacked, and after a severe conflict, the Austrians were driven out of it with a loss, in killed, wounded and prisoners, of 2,200 men. The Sardinian loss was comparatively trifling. This victory was followed by the retreat of the whole Austrian army across the Ticino. The Allies followed them closely, and on the banks of that river was fought, on the 4th of June, the great battle of Magenta. In this battle were engaged 120,000 French and 150,000 Austrians. The Austrians lost 7,000 men taken prisoners, and some 4,000 to 5,000 killed and wounded, and, in consequence of their defeat, evacuated Milan the next day. Meanwhile, Garibaldi, at the head of five or six thousand volunteers, had made his way into northern Lombardy, and was giving the Austrians much annoyance. From the field of Magenta, the Austrians made a rapid retreat upon the Mincio, evacuating Pavia and blowing up the fortifications. To cover that retreat, an Austrian division fought the battle of Malegnano, from which town, after an energetic resistance of three hours, they were dislodged with heavy loss.

The Austrians having succeeded in concentrating all their forces behind the Mincio, as the French approached, recrossed that river, in order to try, on ground selected by themselves, the fate of another battle. The armies met at Solferino on the 24th of June. The Austrians brought into the field some 200,000 men, and the Allies about the same number. Both Emperors were at the head of their respective armies. The attack began at 5 o'clock in the morning, and the battle—one corps after another engaging in it—lasted the whole day. For some time, the result seemed to be doubtful, but, at half-past six in the evening, the Austrians retreated along their whole line. The total loss of the Allies was some 18,000 men. They took 6,000 prisoners and 30 cannon. The loss of the Austrians, who were allowed to retreat without being pursued, was not, according to their own accounts, greater than that of the Allies.

The night after this battle, the Austrians recrossed the Mincio to seek the refuge of their fortresses in the celebrated quadrangle. The Sardinians invested Peschiera, the northwesternmost of these fortresses. Prince Napoleon, who, at the head of 35,000 men, had advanced from Tuscany, where he had been employed in organizing the troops of the revolted duchies, was left to mask the fortress of Mantua, while the French army crossed the Mincio and advanced to lay siege to Verona. Meanwhile, the Austrian garrisons in the dominions of the Pope at Ancona, Ravenna and Bologna, had been hastily withdrawn, and that portion of the Papal dominions known as the Legations, threw off the government of the Pope, and claimed, as the revolted duchies had done, annexation to Sardinia. A formidable French fleet, with troops on board, also made its appearance in the Adriatic, and threatened to assail from that side the communication between Venice and Austria. Preparations were also on foot for getting up a revolution in Hungary, the Allies having entered into communications with Kossuth and other Hungarian exiles, and the Hungarian prisoners taken at Magenta having been organized as the nucleus of an army.

Meanwhile, a great interest on behalf of Austria, had been excited in Germany, and there was reason to apprehend that, if the war went on, the Germans would take side with Austria. The Austrians, though beaten, still preserved their army unbroken, and the quadrangle was a very formidable position. These considerations inclined Napoleon to be content with what he had already gained. He proposed an armistice, which was signed on the 8th of July. Three days afterward, the Emperors, having met at Villafranca, the terms of a final treaty of peace were arranged. Austria agreed to resign Lombardy, which was to be annexed to Sardinia, Austria, however, to retain the fortresses of Mantua and Peschiera. Beside this, which was the main condition, the Emperors agreed to give their support to an Italian confederation under the Presidency of the Pope, and also to favor the restoration of the banished dukes of Tuscany and Modena, though it seems to have been agreed that no force should be used for that purpose. This peace, made without any consultation with Sardinia, did not satisfy the wishes of the Italians, especially the inhabitants of Tuscany, Modena, Parma, and the Papal Legations. In spite of all the representations made to them on behalf of France, they declined to receive back their former rulers, and insisted on annexation to Sardinia. The king of Sardinia, though prevented by France from accepting this offer, yet encouraged the people of Central Italy in maintaining their independent position, and referred them to a European Congress as the necessary sanction for the fulfillment of their wishes. Meanwhile, the details of the cession of Lombardy to Sardinia were the subject of conferences between plenipotentiaries from the three powers assembled at Zurich, the chief difficulty being to settle the amount of the Austrian debt to be assumed by Sardinia, in consequence of the cession. This amount was finally fixed at a hundred and two million francs (about $20,000,000). The signature of the treaties of Zurich was immediately followed by letters of invitation to a Congress, to assemble at Paris on the 15th of December, to decide the fate of Central Italy. Besides the powers which took part in the treaty of Vienna—Great Britain, Russia, Prussia, Austria, France, Spain, Portugal and Sweden—this invitation included also Sardinia, Naples, and the Pope.

THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES.

We, the People of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquillity, provide for the common defence, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution of the United States.

ARTICLE 1.—Section 1.—All legislative powers herein granted, shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives.

Section 2.—1. The House of Representatives shall be composed of members chosen every second year by the people of the several States; and the electors in each State shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the State legislature.

2. No person shall be a representative who shall not have attained to the age of twenty-five years, and been seven years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that State in which he shall be chosen.

3. Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several States which may be included within this Union, according to their respective numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole number of free persons, including those bound to service for a term of years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three-fifths of all other persons. The actual enumeration shall be made within three years after the first meeting of the Congress of the United States, and within every subsequent term of ten years, in such manner as they shall by law direct. The number of representatives shall not exceed one for every thirty thousand, but each State shall have at least one representative; and until each enumeration shall be made, the State of New Hampshire shall be entitled to choose three; Massachusetts, eight; Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, one; Connecticut, five; New York, six; New Jersey, four; Pennsylvania, eight; Delaware, one; Maryland, six; Virginia, ten; North Carolina, five; South Carolina, five; and Georgia, three.

4. When vacancies happen in the representation from any State, the executive authority thereof shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies.

5. The House of Representatives shall choose their speaker and other officers, and shall have the sole power of impeachment.

Section 3.—1. The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two senators from each State, chosen by the legislature thereof for six years; and each senator shall have one vote.

2. Immediately after they shall be assembled in consequence of the first election, they shall be divided as equally as may be into three classes. The seats of the senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year, of the second class at the expiration of the fourth year, and of the third class at the expiration of the sixth year, so that one-third may be chosen every second year; and if vacancies happen, by resignation or otherwise, during the recess of the legislature of any State, the executive thereof may make temporary appointments until the next meeting of the legislature, which shall then fill such vacancies.

3. No person shall be a senator who shall not have attained the age of thirty years, and been nine years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that State for which he shall be chosen.

4. The Vice-President of the United States shall be president of the Senate, but shall have no vote unless they be equally divided.

5. The Senate shall choose their other officers, and also a president pro tempore in the absence of the Vice-President, or when he shall exercise the office of President of the United States.

6. The Senate shall have the sole power to try all impeachments. When sitting for that purpose, they shall be on oath or affirmation. When the President of the United States is tried, the chief justice shall preside: and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present.

7. Judgment in cases of impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust or profit under the United States; but the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment, according to law.

Section 4.—1. The times, places and manner of holding elections for senators and representatives shall be prescribed in each State by the legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time, by law, make or alter such regulations, except as to the places of choosing senators.

2. The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year; and such meeting shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by law appoint a different day.

Section 5.—1. Each house shall be the judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its own members, and a majority of each shall constitute a quorum to do business; but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members, in such manner and under such penalties as each house may provide.

2. Each house may determine the rule of its proceedings, punish its members for disorderly behavior, and with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member.

3. Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and from time to time publish the same, excepting such parts as may in their judgment require secrecy; and the yeas and nays of the members of either house on any question, shall, at the desire of one-fifth of those present, be entered on the journal.

4. Neither house, during the session of Congress, shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two houses shall be sitting.

Section 6 —1. The senators and representatives shall receive a compensation for their services, to be ascertained by law, and paid out of the treasury of the United States. They shall, in all cases, except treason, felony, and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the session of their respective houses, and in going to and returning from the same; and for any speech or debate in either house, they shall not be questioned in any other place.

2. No senator or representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States, which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased, during such time; and no person holding any office under the United States shall be a member of either house during his continuance in office.

Section 7 —1 All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives; but the Senate may propose or concur with amendments, as on other bills.

2. Every bill which shall have passed the House of Representatives and the Senate, shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the President of the United States; if he approve, he shall sign it; but if not he shall return it with his objection, to that house in which it shall have originated; who shall enter the objections at large on their journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered; and if approved by two-thirds of that house, it shall become a law. But in all such cases, the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the President within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their adjournment prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law.

2. Every order, resolution or vote, to which the concurrence of the Senate and House of Representatives may be necessary (except on a question of adjournment), shall be presented to the President of the United States; and before the same shall take effect, shall be approved by him; or being disapproved by him, shall be repassed by two-thirds of the Senate and House of Representatives, according to the rules and limitations prescribed in the case of a bill.

Section 8 .—The Congress shall have power—

1. To lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts, and excises; to pay the debts, and provide for the common defence and general welfare of the United States; but all duties, imposts and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States:

2. To borrow money on the credit of the United States:

3. To regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian tribes:

4. To establish a uniform rule of naturalization, and uniform laws on the subject of bankruptcy throughout the United States:

5. To coin money, regulate the value thereof, and of foreign coin, and fix the standard of weights and measures:

6. To provide for the punishment of counterfeiting the securities and current coin of the United States:

7. To establish post-offices and post-roads:

8. To promote the progress of science and useful arts, by securing for limited times, to authors and inventors, the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries:

9. To constitute tribunals inferior to the supreme court; to define and punish piracies and felonies committed on the high seas, and offences against the law of nations:

10. To declare war, grant letters of marque and reprisal, and make rules concerning captures on land and water:

11. To raise and support armies; but no appropriation of money to that use shall be for a longer term than two years:

12. To provide and maintain a navy:

13. To make rules for the government and regulation of the land and naval forces:

14. To provide for calling forth the militia to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections and repel invasions:

15. To provide for organizing, arming and disciplining the militia, and for governing such parts of them as may be employed in the service of the United States; reserving to the States respectively the appointment of the officers, and the authority of training the militia according to the discipline prescribed by Congress.

16. To execute exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever, over such district (not exceeding ten miles square) as may, by cession of particular States, and the acceptance of Congress, become the seat of government of the United States; and to exercise the like authority over all places purchased, by the consent of the legislature of the State in which the same shall be, for the erection of forts, magazines, arsenals, dock-yards, and other needful buildings:—and

17. To make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers, and all other powers vested by this Constitution in the government of the United States, or in any department or officer thereof.

Section 9 .—1. The migration or importation of such persons as any of the States now existing shall think proper to admit, shall not be prohibited by Congress prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight; but a tax or duty may be imposed on such importation not exceeding ten dollars for each person.

2. The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended, unless when, in cases of rebellion or invasion, the public safety may require it.

3. No bill of attainder, or ex post facto law, shall be passed.

4. No capitation or other direct tax shall be laid, unless in proportion to the census or enumeration hereinbefore directed to be taken.

5. No tax or duty shall be laid on articles exported from any State. No preference shall be given by any regulation of commerce or revenue to the ports of one State over those of another; nor shall vessels bound to or from one State, be obliged to enter, clear, or pay duties in another.

6. No money shall be drawn from the treasury, but in consequence of appropriations made by law; and a regular statement and account of the receipts and expenditures of all public money shall be published from time to time.

7. No title of nobility shall be granted by the United States; and no person holding any office of profit or trust under them, shall, without the consent of the Congress, accept of any present, emolument, office, or title of any kind whatever, from any king, prince, or foreign state.

Section 10.—1. No State shall enter into any treaty, alliance, or confederation; grant letters of marque and reprisal; coin money; emit bills of credit; make anything but gold and silver coin a tender in payment of debts; pass any bill of attainder, ex post facto law, or law impairing the obligation of contracts; or grant any title of nobility.

2. No State shall, without the consent of the Congress, lay any imposts or duties on imports or exports, except what may be absolutely necessary for executing its inspection laws; and the net produce of all duties and imposts laid by any State on imports or exports, shall be for the use of the Treasury of the United States, and all such laws shall be subject to the revision and control of the Congress. No State shall, without the consent of Congress, lay any duty of tonnage, keep troops or ships of war in time of peace, enter into any agreement or compact with another State, or with a foreign power, or engage in war, unless actually invaded, or in such imminent danger as will not admit of delay.

ARTICLE II.—Section 1.—1. The executive power shall be vested in a President of the United States of America. He shall hold his office during the term of four years; and, together with the Vice-President, chosen for the same term, be elected as follows:

2. Each State shall appoint, in such manner as the legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors equal to the whole number of senators and representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress; but not senator or representative, or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States, shall be appointed an elector.

3. The electors shall meet in their respective States, and vote by ballot for two persons, of whom one at least shall not be an inhabitant of the same State with themselves. And they shall make a list of all the persons voted for, and of the number of votes for each; which list they shall sign and certify, and transmit sealed to the seat of government of the United States, directed to the President of the Senate. The President of the Senate shall, in the presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, open all the certificates, and the votes shall then be counted. The person having the greatest number of votes shall be the President, if such number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed; and if there be more than one who have such majority, and have an equal number of votes, then the House of Representatives shall immediately choose, by ballot, one of them for President; and if no person have a majority, then, from the five highest on the list, the said House shall, in like manner, choose a President. But in choosing the President, the votes shall be taken by States, the representatives from each State having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the States, and a majority of all the States shall be necessary to a choice. In every case, after the choice of the President, the person having the greatest number of votes of the electors shall be the Vice-President. But if there should remain two or more who have equal votes, the Senate shall choose from them, by ballot, the Vice-President.

4. The Congress may determine the time of choosing the electors, and the day on which they shall give their votes, which day shall be the same throughout the United States.

5. No person, except a natural born citizen, or a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of this Constitution, shall be eligible to the office of President; neither shall any person be eligible to that office who shall not have attained to the age of thirty-five years, and been fourteen years a resident within the United States.

6. In case of the removal of the President from office, or of his death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the Vice-President; and the Congress may, by law, provide for the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability, both of the President and Vice-President, declaring what officer shall then act as President; and such officer shall act accordingly, until the disability be removed, or a President shall be elected.

7. The President shall, at stated times, receive for his services a compensation, which shall neither be increased nor diminished during the period for which he shall have been elected; and he shall not receive within that period any other emolument from the United States, or any of them.

8. Before he enters on the execution of his office, he shall take the following oath or affirmation:

9. "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States: and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution of the United States."

Section 2.—1. The President shall be Commander-in-chief of the army and navy of the United States, and of the militia of the several States, when called into the actual service of the United States. He may require the opinion, in writing, of the principal officer in each of the executive departments, upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices; and he shall have power to grant reprieves and pardons for offences against the United States, except in cases of impeachment.

2. He shall have power, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the senators present concur; and he shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint ambassadors and other public ministers and consuls, judges of the Supreme Court, and all other officers of the United States, whose appointments are not therein otherwise provided for, and which shall be established by law. But the Congress may, by law, vest the appointment of such inferior officers as they think proper, in the President alone, in the courts of law, or in the heads of departments.

3. The President shall have power to fill any vacancies that may happen during the recess of the Senate, by granting commissions, which shall expire at the end of their next session.

Section 3.—1. He shall, from time to time, give to the Congress information of the state of the Union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient. He may, on extraordinary occasions, convene both Houses, or either of them; and in case of disagreement between them, with respect to the time of adjournment, he may adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper. He shall receive ambassadors and other public ministers. He shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed; and shall commission all the officers of the United States.

Section 4.—1. The President, Vice-President, and all civil officers of the United States, shall be removed from office on impeachment for, and conviction of, treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors.

ARTICLE III.—Section 1.—1. The judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one Supreme Court, and in such inferior courts as the Congress may, from time to time, ordain and establish. The judges, both of the supreme and inferior courts, shall hold their offices during good behavior; and shall, at stated times, receive for their services a compensation, which shall not be diminished during their continuance in office.

Section 2.—1. The judicial power shall extend to all cases in law and equity arising under this Constitution, the laws of the United States, and treaties made, or which shall be made, under their authority; to all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls; to all cases of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction; to controversies to which the United States shall be a party; to controversies between two or more States; between a State and citizens of another State, between citizens of different States, between citizens of the same State claiming lands under grants of different States, and between a State, or the citizens thereof, and foreign states, citizens, or subjects.

2. In all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, and those in which a State shall be a party, the Supreme Court shall have original jurisdiction. In all other cases before mentioned, the Supreme Court shall have appellate jurisdiction, both as to law and fact, with such exceptions, and under such regulations as the Congress shall make.

3. The trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury, and such trial shall be held in the State where the said crimes shall have been committed; but when not committed within any State, the trial shall be in such place or places as the Congress may by law have directed.

Section 3.—1. Treason against the United States shall consist only in levying war against them, or adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason, unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court.

2. The Congress shall have power to declare the punishment of treason; but no attainder of treason shall work corruption of blood or forfeiture, except during the life of the person attainted.

ARTICLE IV.—Section 1.—1. Full faith and credit shall be given in each State to the public acts, records, and judicial proceedings of every other State; and the Congress may, by general laws, prescribe the manner in which such acts, records, and proceedings shall be proved, and the effect thereof.

Section 2.—1. The citizens of each State shall be entitled to all privileges and immunities of citizens in the several States.

2. A person charged in any State with treason, felony, or other crime, who shall flee from justice, and be found in another State, shall, on demand of the executive authority of the State from which he fled, be delivered up, to be removed to the State having jurisdiction of the crime.

3. No person held to service or labor in one State under the laws thereof, escaping into another, shall in consequence of any law or regulation therein, be discharged from such service or labor; but shall be delivered up on claim of the party to whom such service or labor may be due.

Section 3.—1. New States may be admitted by the Congress into this Union; but no new State shall be formed or erected within the jurisdiction of any other State, nor any State be formed by the junction of two or more States or parts of States, without the consent of the legislatures of the States concerned, as well as of the Congress.

2. The Congress shall have power to dispose of, and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States; and nothing in this Constitution shall be so construed as to prejudice any claims of the United States, or of any particular State.

Section 4.—1. The United States shall guarantee to every State in this Union a Republican form of Government, and shall protect each of them against invasion; and, on application of the legislature, or of the executive (when the legislature cannot be convened), against domestic violence.

ARTICLE V.—1. The Congress, whenever two-thirds of both houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to this Constitution; or, on the application to the legislatures of two-thirds of the several States, shall call a convention for proposing amendments, which, in either case, shall be valid, to all intents and purposes, as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several States, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the Congress; provided that no amendment which may be made prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight, shall in any manner affect the first and fourth clauses in the ninth section of the first article; and that no State, without its consent, shall be deprived of its equal suffrage in the Senate.

ARTICLE VI.—1. All debts contracted, and engagements entered into, before the adoption of this Constitution, shall be as valid against the United States under this Constitution, as under the Confederation.

2. This Constitution, and the laws of the United States, which shall be made in pursuance thereof, and all treaties made, or which shall be made, under the authority of the United States, shall be the supreme law of the land, and the judges in every State shall be bound thereby, anything in the constitution or laws of any State to the contrary notwithstanding.

3. The senators and representatives before mentioned, and the members of the several State legislatures, and all executive and judicial officers, both of the United States and of the several States, shall be bound by oath or affirmation to support this Constitution; but no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States.

ARTICLE VII.—1. The ratification of the conventions of nine States shall be sufficient for the establishment of this Constitution between the States so ratifying the same.

Done in convention by the unanimous consent of the States present, the seventeenth day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eighty-seven, and of the Independence of the United States of America, the twelfth. In witness whereof we have hereunto subscribed our names.

GEORGE WASHINGTON,

AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES.

ARTICLE I.—Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof: or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

ARTICLE II.—A well regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.

ARTICLE III.—No soldier shall, in time of peace, be quartered in any house, without the consent of the owner, nor in time of war, but in a manner to be prescribed by law.

ARTICLE IV.—The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated; and no warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the person or things to be seized.

ARTICLE V.—No person shall be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the militia, when in actual service in time of war or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offence to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled, in any criminal case, to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.

ARTICLE VI.—In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law; and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the assistance of counsel for his defence.

ARTICLE VII.—In suits of common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved; and no fact tried by a jury shall be otherwise reexamined in any court of the United States, than according to the rules of the common law.

ARTICLE VIII.—Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishment inflicted.

ARTICLE IX.—The enumeration in the Constitution of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

ARTICLE X.—The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

ARTICLE XI.—The judicial power of the United States shall not be construed to extend to any suit in law or equity, commenced or prosecuted against one of the United States by citizens of another State, or by citizens or subjects of any foreign state.

ARTICLE XII.—The electors shall meet in their respective States, and vote by ballot for President and Vice-President, one of whom, at least, shall not be an inhabitant of the same State with themselves. They shall name in their ballots the person voted for as President, and in distinct ballots, the person voted for as Vice-President; and they shall make distinct lists of all persons voted for as President, and of all persons voted for as Vice-President, and of the number of votes for each; which lists they shall sign and certify, and transmit sealed to the seat of the government of the United States, directed to the President of the Senate. The President of the Senate shall, in the presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, open all the certificates, and the votes shall then be counted. The person having the greatest number of votes for President, shall be the President, if such number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed; and if no person have such majority, then from the persons having the highest numbers, not exceeding three, on the list of those voted for as President, the House of Representatives shall choose immediately, by ballot, the President. But, in choosing the President, the votes shall be taken by States, the representation from each State having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the States, and a majority of all the States shall be necessary to a choice. And if the House of Representatives shall not choose a President whenever the right of choice shall devolve upon them, before the fourth day of March next following, then the Vice-President shall act as President, as in the case of the death or other constitutional disability of the President.

2. The person having the greatest number of votes as Vice-President shall be the Vice-President, if such number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed, and if no person have a majority, then from the two highest numbers on the list, the Senate shall choose the Vice-President. A quorum for the purpose shall consist of two-thirds of the whole number of senators, and a majority of the whole number shall be necessary to a choice.

3. But no person constitutionally ineligible to the office of President, shall be eligible to that of Vice-President of the United States.

Congress.....	Opp'tion.....	36419	Democratic	61134	24715
President.....	Fillmore.....	42439	Buchanan.....	56581	14142

THE LEGISLATURE is largely Democratic in both branches.

ALABAMA.

AN Election was held in this State for Governor, Congressmen, and Members of the Legislature, which was a very one-sided affair—the party labelled Regular Democratic sweeping the State by a majority so large that the Opposition candidates, after the election, were not positive that they had been running at all. The Opposition appealed to the people, as being better friends of the South, or rather of the slaveholders, than the regular Democracy, a dodge which does not seem to have succeeded either in Alabama or elsewhere in the South where it has been resorted to. Andrew B. Moore, regular Democrat, was re-elected Governor, over William F. Samford, fire-eater, by about 20,000 majority.

For Congress there was a show of opposition to James A. Stallworth, regular Democrat, in the 1st (Mobile) District, but he was re-elected by 3083 majority. In the 11th (Montgomery) District there was quite a sharp contest between David Clopton, regular Democrat, and T. J. Judge, Whig, or ex-Whig, or American, which resulted in the success of the Democratic candidate by a more decisive majority than at the last previous Congressional election, as follows:

Tallapoosa.....	1459	1691...	1394	1649

Total..... 6666 6890.. 6418 6503

Majority for Clopton, 214; do. for Dowdell, 87.

In the other Congressional districts the Democratic candidates were elected with no opposition, or next to none.

THE LEGISLATURE is very Democratic, of course.

MISSISSIPPI.

AN election was held in this State for Governor and other State officers, Congressmen and Legislature, the result of which shows that about three-fourths of the voters of the State are Democrats, as follows:

LEGISLATURE, 1859.

SENATE.....	Opposition, 11; Democrats, 14.
HOUSE.....	Opposition, 34; Democrats, 41.

* This vote hardly shows the full strength of the Opposition, since they ran no candidate in the VIth District, where they cast 4,396 votes for Governor, while in the VIIth District the contest was only nominal, the Opposition casting about 3,000 less votes for Congress than for Governor.

* It is asserted in the Kentucky newspapers that there is a mistake in the returns for this county. That Anderson's real vote is 1 less than the official return, which, if true, elects Chrisman by 11 majority.

 for Buchanan, 7922.

The above returns, as will be seen, are incomplete; but we hope to receive the official vote in time for a second edition of the Almanac. The official aggregate returns for Governor and Lieut. Governor are:

Governor..... Houston..... 36170; Runnels..... 27500

Majority for Houston, 8670.

Lt. Governor, Clark..... 31458; Lubbock..... 30325

Majority for Clark, Ind. Dem., 1133.

Of course, these figures do not exactly agree with the returns in the above table.

THE LEGISLATURE is strongly Democratic—but whether Houston or anti-Houston we have no means of knowing. Houston and Hamilton ran as Independent Democrats.

Maj. for Estabrook, 300; do. for Harvey, 375.

The Democratic candidates for other Territorial offices, Treasurer, Auditor, etc., were also elected.

Mr. Daily, the Republican candidate for Congress, will contest the seat, on the ground of alleged frauds in the election, the returning of the vote from Buffalo county, which had not been organized according to law, and was not, therefore, entitled to vote, etc.

THE LEGISLATURE is Democratic.

MISSOURI.

THERE was no election in this State during the year 1859, for either State Officers or Congressmen. A Judge of the Supreme Court and Judges of the Circuit Courts were chosen, but party politics did not enter into the contest to any considerable extent. For Supreme Court Judge there were three candidates, who received each nearly the same number of votes, viz., Ewing, Adams and Hall. The Hon. E. B. Ewing was the successful candidate.

For Governor of the Alms House, the result was for Wm. Pinckney, Rep. & Am., 27156; McElroy, Tammany Dem., 21463; Lynch, Mozart Dem., 28369.

Aldermen were chosen at this election in 8 of the 17 districts of the city, and the whole number elected are Democrats, though a portion belong to Mozart, and others to Tammany. The Board, including the 9 who hold over, stands, 5 Republicans or Opposition, and 12 Democrats.

A full Board of Councilmen, 24, were elected, of whom 8 are Republicans, and 16 Democrats of various stripes.

INDIANA.

No election was held for any State Officer last October, except as follows. Mr. McClure, Dem., who had been re-elected Secretary of State in October, 1858, having received an appointment to a more profitable office from the President, resigned the Secretaryship before the commencement of his new term. Gov. Willard appointed C. L. Dunham, not only for the unexpired portion of Mr. McClure's old term, but for the whole of the new term for which McClure had been elected, but on which he had not commenced before his resignation. The term being for two years, and the regular October election intervening, at which, it was held by the Republicans, that any vacant State Office should be filled, many counties voted for Secretary of State. James M. Hill, Esq., Republican, having received the largest number of votes, will, it is understood, claim the office, and his title will be decided by the Courts. Apart from this the only election in the State was for Judges in two or three circuits, and for County Officers, the result of which was unexpectedly gratifying to the Opposition, who claim that a State canvass, judging from these returns, would have resulted in their favor.
